Downtown Phoenix’s nightlife scene is bustling with craft cocktails, local music and hidden speakeasies. Here are a few spots to grab a drink or bite to eat when the sun goes down.

Bitter & Twisted Cocktail Parlour

1 W. Jefferson St.
602-340-1924

Recognized as one of the best bars in America by the likes of the Food Network, Huffpost, Eater, Food & Wine magazine and others—Bitter & Twisted’s reputation speaks for itself.

How did it all start? “Years ago, Bitter & Twisted was the first in the entire state to implement the idea of cocktails as the focus,” says Ross Simon, owner and creator of the illustrious bar. “We were the first to make this idea come to life, and we became an institution.”

For an elevated cocktail with a fun twist, try the "Bear Witness," which contains Kikori whiskey shaken with grapefruit, lemon, yuzu marmalade and peppercorn-honey syrup. Bonus: it even comes in a little honey bear bottle.

Little Rituals

132 S. Central Ave., 4th Floor
602-603-2050

Located on the fourth floor of Marriott’s Residence Inn and Courtyard, Little Rituals is no longer Downtown Phoenix’s “little” secret. As the sister bar to Bitter & Twisted, Little Rituals has rapidly grown in popularity, and brings the same prowess and creativity to its patrons.

Don’t be intimidated by the robust menu, because “Little Rituals is both for the cocktail connoisseur or someone just trying to get into cocktails,” according to Ross Simon, co-owner of Little Rituals.

If you want to sip on a beverage that’s unique and artsy, but still accessible, order the “Big City Nights,” which was dreamed up by Simon’s partner, Aaron Defeo. The drink features an edible depiction of the Phoenix skyline that looks as good as it tastes. “We’re only as good as the last cocktail we serve,” says Simon.

Pigtails Downtown
1 E. Washington St., Ste. 128
602-675-4416
Did you know there’s a hidden speakeasy with a living plant wall and raw oyster bar in Downtown Phoenix? Honestly, what more could you ever need?

Copper Blues Rock Pub & Kitchen
50 W. Jefferson St.
480-719-5005
If you’re looking for live music, look no further than Copper Blues. Right in the heart of CityScape, Copper Blues has been around for over 10 years and features musicians from all genres—including country, rock, pop and R&B.

What’s the key to its success? “We’ve embraced the culture of ‘come as you are’—our venue doesn’t have a theme or an attitude—we’re your local neighborhood bar with free live music every night,” says Ryan Handelsman, marketing and business development director for Copper Blues.

The venue embraces the local music scene on a nightly basis, but Fitz and the Tantrums, The Black Moods, and many other big names have graced the stage. Stay for a cocktail or choose from one of 64 beers on tap.

Pigtails is a small but mighty bar with a fun entryway. Let the neon “cocktails” sign lead you straight past the oyster bar and through the unassuming kitchen doors. Once inside, you’ll find unique libations that will impress even your fanciest friends.

General Manager Ashlee Mahoney recommends trying the “Plumdog Millionaire,” which includes Drumshanbo Gunpowder Irish Gin, plum syrup made in-house, plum wine, and plum and figgy pudding bitters. She also says “the charcuterie boards are to die for.” With jams made in-house, we couldn’t agree more.

Phoenix Bourbon Room
2 E. Jefferson St.
602-607-5601
Do you like bourbon, rye or specialty whiskies? Phoenix Bourbon Room has it all.

Located right in the heart of Downtown Phoenix, this whiskey-centric bar and restaurant is a new sister concept to State 48 Brewery (located just west of the Downtown Core), and features an exclusive State 48 Bourbon. Both concepts are locally owned by members of the Rana family.

“We chose bourbon because we love it as a family, and there is a large need for a place like this locally,” says Vince Rana, co-owner of Phoenix Bourbon Room.

If you’re also a meat lover, then this place is definitely for you.

“We smoke all of our meats in-house and are currently known for having the best smoked brisket sandwich,” says Rana. Bourbon and brisket? Sounds like the perfect pair.

REACHING FOR THE SUN:
DOWNTOWN’S ICONIC
WESTWARD HO

BY DOUGLAS C. TOWNE
The growth of tourism in Phoenix after World War I was the impetus for this swank hotel. The Pacific Hotel Company of Los Angeles planned a 16-story hotel called the “Roosevelt” just north of Downtown Phoenix at Central Avenue and Fillmore Street. Construction began in 1926, but the company went broke before completing the building.

Phoenix investor George L. Johnson took over the project and opened it as the Hotel Westward Ho in 1928. The hotel was the tallest building in Phoenix for 32 years.

As a first-class hotel charging $2 per night, at a time when most Phoenix hotel rooms cost a quarter, the Westward Ho was a glamorous hotspot for Hollywood celebrities, powerful politicians, wealthy visitors, and ordinary folk celebrating special occasions.

The hotel’s legendary moments include an alleged late-night skinny dip by Marilyn Monroe, and a speech given on its front steps by John F. Kennedy—just days before being elected the 35th President in 1960.

The Westward Ho was also home to Arizona’s first television station, KPHO-TV5. The station used the 268-foot-high television tower atop the building from 1949 until 1960 when a new transmitter was built on South Mountain.

The tower remains an indelible city signpost and is often mistaken for the one shown in the opening of Alfred Hitchcock’s 1960 movie, Psycho.

That famous, now-removed radio tower was a few blocks south, atop the Heard Building. The Westward Ho’s tower did appear in the film’s 1998 remake.

What’s a historic building without a bit of mystery? The hotel used to have a secret tunnel that led east to the long-defunct underground bowling alley, the Gold Spot.

There’s even an urban legend that Al Capone’s car lies abandoned in the tunnel.

The construction of the hotel helped solve one of the city’s most vexing transportation problems. The Old Town Ditch, also known as Swilling’s Ditch, flowed alongside Van Buren Street near Central Avenue. The open trench proved to be a magnet for wayward autos.

The Salt River Water Users Association, now called the Salt River Project, agreed to abandon the canal and divert its water into the Grand Canal in 1923. Three years later, the Old Town Ditch was filled with soil excavated from the hotel construction site.

Legend has it that Al Capone’s car lies abandoned in a secret underground tunnel.

The Maltese cross-shaped building is a survivor. After World War II when commercial activity shifted from downtown to new suburbs, the Westward Ho stayed in business until 1979. Shortly afterward, the building reopened as low-income apartments for the elderly and disabled. In 2016, Arizona State University’s social and health services program created a partnership with the building’s current ownership, CDG-PAG. Through this collaboration, ASU operates a ground-floor clinic providing supportive services to the building’s residents.

Phoenix’s skyline—and history—would seem incomplete without its towering presence.

About the author:
Freelance writer, hydrologist, historian and artist, Douglas C. Towne first toured the Westward Ho’s ornate lobby during the third annual Art Detour art walk in 1991. It was used as a pop-up gallery, but is not typically open to the public.

Downtown Phoenix Ambassadors
Thank them for our friendly city sidewalks.

Complimentary services provided in the Downtown Core:
- Walking Escorts
- Finding Lost Vehicles
- Car Battery Jumps
- Umbrella Escorts
- Restaurant Recommendations
- Personalized Tours
- Entertainment Info
- Homeless Outreach

About the Ambassadors:
Downtown’s roving hospitality and outreach teams are on duty seven days a week, 365 days a year to help you—whether that means walking you to your car, helping connect people experiencing homelessness to services, or simply offering directions. Look for the folks wearing orange shirts with “ASK ME” on the back.

About the Downtown Phoenix Partnership:
The Downtown Phoenix Ambassadors are a service of the Downtown Phoenix Partnership (DPP), an affiliate of Downtown Phoenix Inc. A 501c3 nonprofit organization, DPP is funded by an assessment on all property owners within the 90-square-block area of the Downtown Phoenix Business Improvement District, also known as the Downtown Core. The DPP service boundaries are Seventh Street on the east to Third Avenue on the west, and Fillmore Street on the north to the Union Pacific tracks (south of Jackson Street) on the south.

It was formed in 1990 to strengthen Downtown Phoenix development and to encourage an environment of activity, energy and vitality. To accomplish this, DPP provides a variety of enhanced municipal services to the Downtown Core.
